- Popsicles table has a check to see if ohc vales falls within 0 and 500
 - This is needed because according to my business rules, each popsicles flavor can have a maximum stock of 500.
- R_cusomter table has a similar check to make sure that popsicles bought value is positive.
 - When a rewards customer uses their points, the owner can choose to reset this number. This check helps make sure that the pop_bought number isn't ever set to a negative value.

- In the compute call, I found out that a label can be added to change the name of the computed row. I don't remember if this was covered, but I found it interesting.
